International Society of Schema Therapy

Join us in Vienna this summer as the International Society of Schema Therapy (ISST) brings together a community of clinicians, researchers, educators, and supporters for the biannual conference to catch up on the latest advances in schema therapy, while enjoying the connections of friends and colleagues from around the world, including those new to schema therapy, and those who have long shared a passion for the model and its results.

You can choose from several preconference options, and during the conference days, you will hear from keynote speakers from both inside and outside the schema therapy world.
